Entry Name: Greenfield Hill

Category: Commercial and Advertising – Lifestyle

Client: James Doyle Design Associates

These photographs were created for James Doyle Design Associates, a landscape architecture firm based out of Greenwich, Connecticut. Located at the highest point on Greenfield Hill, this project overlooks Long Island Sound. Swimmers in the contemporary, private pool have views across the sound – once a view where the car park was.

The old chicken coop was reimagined as an artist studio by Vicente Burin Architects. Homeowners wanted a cutting garden with vegetables mixed in, and it features a hidden mesh fence to keep deer out. Plantings in the garden next to the pool include Hornbeam, English Ivy, New Dawn Rose, and Boxwoods. In the distance, you can see the Boxwood Ivy climbing up the turret.
